Ir would seem that President McKINLEY has not taken an undue time in making up his mind on the Hawaiim question, for on the 14th inst., REUTER telegraphed that there were indications showing that the President was considering the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands or of proclaiming a protectorate over them which would eventually lead to annexation, and two days later we are told that a treaty for the annexation has been signed at Washington. This Treaty is to be submitted to the Senate immediately, and as that body is undoubtedly jingo there is every reason to believe that it will pass the Bill. The House of Representatives will possibly debate the question, and may even reject the Treaty, but we think this is unlikely. It is | Majesty Queen Victoria at the age of 20 years true that the United States Government has, in past times, refused to entertain the iden of annexing either the Hawaiian Islands or any other territory outside the American continent. It has been an article of faith with American statesman, indeed it has been regarded us almost a law of the constitution, that the limits of the republic should not be extended beyond the North American Continent. That the republic should remain compact and self contained has always been. the aim and intention of its founders and successive rulers, one great object being to avoid imbroglios with Foreign States. In later years there has been some departure from this policy of insulation. President MONROE, when inaugurating his doctrine that the United States could not admit the right of European States to interveue politically on the American Continent, unconsciously paved the way for the gradual evolution of a new policy which may destroy that insulation hitherto so strongly cherished. Wheher or not the Mourous doctine is American nation it is as yet too early to pronounce, at all events dogmatically. It may Anglo-Saxon Republic should by right of its size, wealth, importance, and intelligence American Continent, and claim the right to intervene in any quarrel between a lesser Power and any European States. This was done in the case of the French invasion of best effect will be produced if there is a short stribute to his talent, the inkstand which he Merico, when Napoleon III. was warned interval between each lantern, off, and the unfortunate MAXIMILIAN left to his tragic fate. Only the other day the Republic claimed the right to arbitrate? between Great Britain and Venezuela; and she may, on another occasion, interpose in a quarrel between Germany and Brazil; or Italy and Argentina. It is quite within the bounds of probability that persoverance in this policy may involve the United States in a war with a great military Power, but the Republic is well able to take care of itself, and though at present singularly vulnerable to attack on its coasts, would soon show that it possessed the means wherewith to enforce its monnees and decisions. In the event of the Senate and House of Representatives endorsing the action of the President, there is not likely to be any 206. American susceptibilities. British interests in the islands will be much more assured if the islands are annexed to the United States than they would be, say, under Japanese rule, and England is not wont to act the part of the dog in the manger. A crisis has undoubtedly arrived in the history of the islands. the islands in 1800 was 89,990, of whom 34,436 (little over one-third) were natives, 6,186 half-castes, 7,495 born in Hawaii of European and American parents, 15,301 Chinese, 12,360 Japanese, 8,602 Portuguese, 1,928 Americans, 1,344 British, 1,034 Gcrmans, 297 Norwegians, 70 French, 588 Polynesians, and 419 other foreigners. At the present moment the Japanese population is estimated at nearly 30,000, and is constantly increasing. The recent success of Japanese arms over China, the acquisition by Japan of a powerful fleet, and the appearance in so many foreign ports of Japanese merchantmen, have strongly impressed the Government of weaker States, and there obviously some likelihood of Japanese interests in the group eventually overshadowing those of all other Powers combined. There are, too, many temptations to Japan to aspire to the sovereignty of these lovely and fertile islands. They already afford capital field for Japanese labour and would if acquired, give employment for Japanese capital and manufacturing industry. The Japanese might also win over the support of the natives, who are not antipathetic, and they would soon find ways of ousting the Chinese population. It would therefore be far less difficult for Japan to absorb Hawaii than it has proved for her to assimilate Formosa. Not unnaturally Japan has protested against the American annexation of the islands, and Germany may be inclined to follow suite, but if the American people approve, the treaty will be ratified, England acquiescing. Some action has become necessary in the interests of the Caucasians resident in Hawaii, and if the United States Congress were to decline to endorse President McKinley's action, Great Britain

In Messrs. Cottam & Co.'s store there is at present on view a picture which possesses special interest at the present time. It is a print, coloured, and has been in the colony over fifty years. The subject is described in the inscription as follows :- " Hor Most Gracious proceeding to the Royal Review at Windsor, May 24th, 1839, accompanied by H. M. the King of the Belgians, Duke of Wellington, Lord Hill, etc." The picture is the property of Mr. F. X. de Jesus, of Mesers. Cottam & Co.'s staff, and was purchased by Mr. de Jesus's father at an auction some fifty years ago.

The next combined practice of the music to be sung at the Happy Valley on Jubilee day will take place at the City Hall this afternoon, and as it is the last practice it is hoped every lady and gentleman who intends taking part in the singing will make it their duty to attend. A phonograph will be placed on the stage to record the performance at the "Hallelujah Chorus." The budges for the ladies and gontlemen taking part in the performance will be given to those attending the practice to-day. Badges will be sent by post early on Monday morning to those ludies and gentlemen who are unable to attend, provided their addresses are known to the Committee. These badges (worn on the left breast) will admit the bearers to all the enclosures and no tickets will be required.

About one hundred robbers made an attack on a pawn shop in the city of Yau-ping on the 23rd ultimo at 9 p.m. The pawn shop was strongly fortified. Shots and bullets were exchanged between the inmutes of the pawnshop and the robbers for about three hours, but the robbers were unable to gain an entrance and were forced to retire. In the morning a good many marks of blood were seen upon the road. All the pawnshops in Canton have gone on Office for Sundays in all things; except strike. The cause is that on the 11th instant a Bannerman named Ku Tsun-yung went to pawn a coat in a pawnshop and asked more money than the original value of the cost. The people of the pawnshop refused to give him the amount he asked and he then anatched all the articles from the people who were waiting to pawn them and ran away. The people then beat the gong to give slarm and the culprit was at last captured by the police. pawnshops were then all closed and they have sent a petition to the Governor saying that the

As the price of rice is exceptionally high, a Sansanamed Chu Ki-ying sent a petition to the Governor asking him to prohibit the expertation of rice from Canton, which, he said was the cause of the rise in the prices. His Excellency replied that his request could not be granted, for rice was allowed to be experted at the request of foreigners. He has already sent a weiguen to buy rice from the Hu-kwang provinces. > STRANDING OF THE S. S. " GLENGARRY.'

ATTEMPT AT ABDUCTING TWO OF THE OFFICERS. BOMALI TREACHERY. A PLUCKY ESCAPE.

The s. s., Glengarry left London for China and Japan on April 21st. All went well until the 13th of May, at 7-15 p.m., when about 300 miles South of Aden and between the points known as Eas Filuk and Ras Alula on the east coast of Africa the vessel stranded on a sandbank, distance from the shere approximately 600 yards in latitude 12.18 W., longitude 49.02 E. The catastrophe was due to a haze which was overhanging the horizon, and there being a very strong incoming current. the vessel was found to be about 3 miles nearer the coast than she ought to have been, although the compass indicated the correct course. When it was seen that the ship was aground the engines were reversed at once, and every endeavour made to get her off, the efficers and crew working unceasingly all night, but, unfortunately without success, the water having receded to such an extent, that it was decided to await the return of the tide, which would be flowing at 4.10 p.m., on the 14th. This being a spring tide a few inches more of water would be available, and it was anticipated this additional water would be sufficient to float her. In the early part of the morning several "Somalia" came off from a native village known by the name of Ras Alula and asked to be allowed on the ship; the Captain consented to two of the crew being admitted, and, as one of them spoke Hindustani the fourth officer, who also could speak this language, was thus enabled to converse with them and translate their wishes to the Captain. During the conversation that ensued, it was ascertained that the Sultan desired to interview the Captain or one of the officers of the ship, with a view to reciprocate salaams and to show regard. The Captain knowing the native tribes on this coast so well was very cautious and would not accede to their repeated requests. In the afternoon, about 4 un. another crew visited the ship which included a native who addressed himself as the son of the Sultan, and his numerous solicitations and the friendly manner in which he asked for one of the officers to meet his father caused the Captain to deviate from his original intention and after some consideration, he consented to the chief and fourth officers going ashore with him. It may here be stated that this personage suggested leaving his sword (the sheath of which was made of silver) as security and as a token of good faith; this generous offer, however, was not accepted as the Captain, after what had passed in conversation, did not many yards from the point of landing when the

This placed the officers in a singular position because they had not deemed it necessary to take coins of any kind with them. After the officers had remoustrated for some time it was decided to leave the fourth with them until the Chief and three Somalis interviewed the Captain, who had by this time taken up a position some three miles from the shore. accepting £20, which was promptly paid to them on board the ship, with the understanding that the officer in bondage was to be immodiately set free on their return to the shore.
